Simple and subtle - 30 Carats is a funny speculation game with bluff!

The game of Investment Banker Fabien Chevillon was inspired of the Lehman bankruptcy, financial crisis and the theory of efficient markets. There, too, is all about speculation, losses and bluff. This guarantees that the players have the same empathize with what the traders during the markets thunderstorm had to go through.

"The basic idea of this short but exciting game is surprisingly simple. A new and original way of auction, in which you need a proper dose of bluff and analytic skills in relation to the behavior of your opponents."

Tom Werneck, co-founder „Spiel des Jahres“

You are an adventurer in search of the most beautiful gems. Today's trading. Try to get richer by interchanging your for the best price. But beware of defrauders, who try to pass of ordinary stones as diamonds. A game consists of 3 rounds. Each player tries to increase his fortune by selling low-precious stones and purchase valuable ones. At the beginning of the game, each player knows the value of each of the differently colored gems. But values change. At the end of the gamethe players reveal how much their gems are worth. The player with the highest loot wins the game.
